

STATEMENT OF PRINCIPLES

Newt Gingrich

American Solutions for Winning the Future

Grover Norquist

Americans for Tax Reform

Edwin Meese III

Former U.S. Attorney General

William J. Bennett

Former Secretary of Education and Federal "Drug Czar"

Asa Hutchinson

Former U.S. Attorney and Administrator of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration

Pat Nolan

Justice Fellowship

David Keene

American Conservative Union

Richard Viguerie

ConservativeHQ.com

Chuck Colson

Prison Fellowship Ministries

Brooke Rollins

Texas Public Policy Foundation

Paul Gessing

Rio Grande Foundation (NM)

Tony Perkins

Family Research Council

George Liebmann

Calvert Institute for Policy Research, Inc. (MD)

Rabbi Daniel Lapin

American Alliance of Jews and Christians

Kelly McCutchen

Georgia Public Policy Foundation

Penny Nance

Concerned Women for America

Ward Connerly

American Civil Rights Institute & former Regent of University of California

John J. DiIulio, Jr.

University of Pennsylvania

Kevin Kane

Pelican Institute for Public Policy (LA)

Bob Williams

State Budget Solutions

List of signatories continues on page two.

As members of the nation's conservative movement, we strongly support constitutionally limited government, transparency, individual liberty, personal responsibility, and free enterprise. We believe public safety is a core responsibility of government because the establishment of a well-functioning criminal justice system enforces order and respect for every person's right to property and life, and ensures that liberty does not lead to license.

Conservatives correctly insist that government services be evaluated on whether they produce the best possible results at the lowest possible cost, but too often this lens of accountability has not focused as much on public safety policies as other areas of government. As such, corrections spending has expanded to become the second fastest growing area of state budgets—trailing only Medicaid.

Conservatives are known for being tough on crime, but we must also be tough on criminal justice spending. That means demanding more cost-effective approaches that enhance public safety. A clear example is our reliance on prisons, which serve a critical role by incapacitating dangerous offenders and career criminals but are not the solution for every type of offender. And in some instances, they have the unintended consequence of hardening nonviolent, low-risk offenders—making them a greater risk to the public than when they entered.

Applying the following conservative principles to criminal justice policy is vital to achieving a cost-effective system that protects citizens, restores victims, and reforms wrongdoers.

1. As with any government program, the criminal justice system must be transparent and include performance measures that hold it accountable for its results in protecting the public, lowering crime rates, reducing re-offending, collecting victim restitution and conserving taxpayers' money.
2. Crime victims, along with the public and taxpayers, are among the key "consumers" of the criminal justice system; the victim's conception of justice, public safety, and the offender's risk for future criminal conduct should be prioritized when determining an appropriate punishment.
3. The corrections system should emphasize public safety, personal responsibility, work, restitution, community service, and

J. Robert McClure III*James Madison Institute (FL)Matt MayerBuckeye Institute for Public Policy Solutions (OH)Viet DinhGeorgetown University Law Center & former U.S. Assistant Attorney GeneralJohn McCollisterPlatte Institute (NE)Michael CarnuccioOklahoma Council of Public AffairsRonald F. ScheberleAmerican Legislative Exchange CouncilEli LehrerHeartland InstituteDavid BartonWallBuildersMatthew J. BrouilletteCommonwealth Foundation (PA)George KellingManhattan InstituteForest ThigpenMississippi Center for Public PolicyJohn HoodJohn Locke Foundation (NC)Craig LadwigIndiana Policy Review FoundationDeborah DanielsFormer U.S. Assistant Attorney General, Office of Justice ProgramsDominic M. CalabroFlorida TaxWatch* treatment—both in probation and parole, which supervise most offenders, and in prisons.

4. An ideal criminal justice system works to reform amenable offenders who will return to society through harnessing the power of families, charities, faith-based groups, and communities.
5. Because incentives affect human behavior, policies for both offenders and the corrections system must align incentives with our goals of public safety, victim restitution and satisfaction, and cost-effectiveness, thereby moving from a system that grows when it fails to one that rewards results.
6. Criminal law should be reserved for conduct that is either blameworthy or threatens public safety, not wielded to grow government and undermine economic freedom.

These principles are grounded in time-tested conservative truths—constitutionally limited government, transparency, individual liberty, personal responsibility, free enterprise, and the centrality of the family and community. All of these are critical to addressing today's criminal justice challenges. It is time to apply these principles to the task of delivering a better return on taxpayers' investments in public safety. Our security, prosperity, and freedom depend on it.

About Us

Right on Crime is a national initiative led by the Texas Public Policy Foundation, one of the nation's leading state-based conservative think tanks. The initiative aims to raise awareness of the truly conservative position on criminal justice policy by demonstrating the growing support for effective criminal justice reforms within the conservative movement. This initiative will share research and policy ideas, mobilize conservative leaders, and work to raise public awareness.

Right on Crime couldn't be timelier. With new majorities in 19 state legislatures and hundreds of new lawmakers who pledged to cut spending now taking office, Right on Crime provides conservative principled solutions that are proven to reduce crime, lower costs and restore victims. For more information, please visit www.rightoncrime.com.